Investment update - September

Rising COVID-19 cases as well as questions over refreshed fiscal stimulus measures contributed to investor sentiment waning in September, as equity market returns around the world flattened in sterling terms. Indeed, the pace of economic recovery seems to be losing some momentum since the rebound in activity seen in the summer months. With winter around the corner, the outlook for markets continues to be cloaked in uncertainty and impacted by assumptions on the spread of COVID-19 and the potential for renewed lockdowns. There are some areas where greater longer-term opportunity seemingly exists, namely the US and Asian markets, as the benefits of geographic diversification come to the fore. With this in mind, our Investment Committee undertook a further redistribution of the strategy's equity exposure in September by reducing its allocation to the UK stockmarket and reinvesting the proceeds into the US. The newly added AXA Framlington Global Technology fund should take advantage of the recent sell-off in US 'big tech' to increase exposure to an area likely to remain in vogue as the world adjusts to the 'new normal'. The strategy retains a broadly neutral commitment to stockmarkets, which is in line with our longer-term strategic positioning. The asset allocation change means that circa 50% of clients' stockmarket exposure is allocated to the US and around 80% of equity investment is exposed to more vibrant economies and opportunities outside the UK.
